

Bio for Mahsa Sabaghi Khameneh

Mahsa Sabaghi Khameneh holds her BA in Anthropology at Tehran University and her MA in Cultural Studies at Science and Culture University of Tehran, Iran. Her research interests cover a wide variation of subjects including: Gender and sexuality, power relations and women resistance, and subalternity among women. She has defended her MA thesis titled The Experience of Women about Virginity and its Enclosures in Iran (2018) which was aimed to explore the virginity from a political economy point of view. Also, she has been a social researcher in Garbage Archaeology project supervised by Dr. Leila Papoli Yazdi in Tehran, Iran. Based on the documents found in this project, she has written an essay about political economy of Iran's healthcare system, and in particular personal experiences of two marketers who are working in this system which is under publication both in English and Farsi. For now, she is working on a project about the gender norms between women believing in different religions in Iran.